Secret EEC Document Seeks Israeli Pullback

Renewed Effort Backs Palestinian Vote

By Joseph Fitcherr

PARIS - A secret Common Market working document on a Mideast settlement calls for Israel to withdraw from all occupied Arab territory and make room for Palestinian self-determination, Western diplomats said during the weekend.

Details of the Common Market document emerged as European diplomats started consultations on it with Arab and Israeli leaders. Meanwhile, British Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington, visiting the United States, has sought U.S. backing for a new political initia-tive to achieve a Mideast settle-ment. These talks, in the Middle East and in Washington, mark the effective resumption of the European initiative after a three-month

European activity is expected by most officials to remain low-key until July, when Britain takes charge of diplomacy for the European Economie Community. In addition, both European and U.S. officials want to avoid any public clash with Israel that could boister political hawks there in the forthcoming elections,

But the broad lines of the new European approach already are surfacing. For example the EEC document, which Dutch Foreign

The options are contained in a 30-page paper that calls for total Israeli withdrawal to pre-1967 borders, dismantlement of all post-1967 settlements, creation of a Pal-estinian entity to be administered by a transitional authority while Palestinians vote on their own future, and Western military guarantees for the ensuing final borders. The text was originally leaked to the Brussels newspaper Le Soir and confirmed by diplomats with access to it. It does not mention the Palestine Liberation Organization, hut prescribes conditions that could well result in a PLO-led Palestinian state, diplomats said. Israeli Criticism

Although the document is a series of opoons for discussion, not a final plan, it reflects a broad consensus among EEC governments, which adopted it last December in Luxembourg.

Despite this European unanimity, it still is only a debating paper in Middle East power politics, where Europe has only limited le-verage, several diplomats pointed Avoiding Comment .

Soviet officials have avoided definitive comment on the Italian issue, even though it has been raised every day at press briefings. Vadim V. Zagladin, a ranking official of the Central Committee, said that it was a matter of chance which of the 109 foreign delegations would speak to the congress itself and which would speak outside. In sharp contrast to the snuh to the Italians, the Kremlin honored the good behavior of the French party, one of the erstwhile leaders of the Eurocommunist movement. The head of the French delegation. Gaston Plisonnier, spoke at the congress on Tuesday before the representative of any other nonruling Communist party.

Reflecting the rapprochement reached in January, 1980, between Georges Marchais, the French party leader, and Leonid I. Brezhnev, the Soviet president, at a meeting in Moscow, Mr. Plisonnier praised the "active relations of fraternity and solidarity between our two parties." However, be neither di-rectly acknowledged the primacy of the Soviet Union nor attacked Eurocom

Some analysts considered it sig-nificant that Mr. Marchais had stayed away, although the French said that his absence resulted sole ly from his preoccupation with the electoral campaign in France. In his speech opening the Con-gress on Monday, Mr. Brezhnev said that Communist parties in dif-ferent countries had always had dissimilar opinions on some issues in the past, but had still found it possible to cooperate.

Then he declared: "We pay close heed to comradely, constructive criticism. But we are categorically opposed to 'criticism' that distorts the Socialist reality and, wittingly or unwittingly, does a good turn thereby to imperialist propaganda, to our class opponent. As our party sees it, differences of opinion can be overcome, unless, of course, they are fundamental differences between revolutionaries and reformists, between creative Marxism and dogmatic sectarianism or leftist adventuespecially of the woman they knew who sold coffee and snacks in front of the building. The ontright war that began in January with a failed guerrilla offensive has cooled as the Salvadoran people refuse to support a general uprising. But the Salvadoran terror continues.

The terror has been fostered by all sides of the conflict — the guer-rillas, the extreme right and ele-ments of the government. The tactic was to bring the Salvadoran people to the point where they would say, en masse, basta ya, (enough already), and give their support to whoever promised to end the violence. But Israeli officials said their government rejects both the mechanics of a settlement outlined in the EEC document and any notion of contacts with the PLO. Israel maintains that the Camp David accords between Israel and Egypt are the only valid negotiating framework.

In addition, the accelerating number of Israeli settlements in the West Bank has prompted some U.S. diplomats to report from the Middle East that by next summer it may have become unrealistic to envisage Palestinian autonomy as described in the Camp David accords.

In contrast to Camp David, the European approach aims at what its authors call a comprehensive Photographing public gatherings or dem-constrations by satellite would not necessarily be illegal, according to officials. The use of such photographs by the CIA for domestic intelligence gathering would, however, have violated prohibitions against agency opera-tions in the United States.

The most advanced photo-reconnaissance satellites, using sophisticated cameras with powerful lenses, can produce clear pictures of cars, trucks and even individuals from or-bits 100 miles high, officials said. A former official of the reconnaissance

Management Questioned

"Some of the overruns raise questions about proper management of the program," said a Senate staff member familiar with the reconnaissance office. He, as well as senior government officials interviewed, asked not to be identified because of the strict secrecy governing the office.

They agreed to discuss the subject, they said, because of concern that the office had operated without the rigorous overseeing normally given to intelligence work by Congress and the executive branch. The office director is normally the under ecretary of the Air Force or the assistant ecretary for research and development. Congressional oversight is handled by the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence and the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence.

Spencer Davis, a staff member who is spokesman for the Senate Intelligence Com-mittee, said "the committee feels it is fulfilling its responsibilities" to oversee intelligence agency budgets. He said he could not: comment on allegations of excess costs by the reconnaissance office.

When a prospective Air Force under seco tary or assistant secretary goes before the full Senate for confirmation, no mention is made of the office's dual responsibilities. One sen-ator on the Intelligence Committee estimated that two-thirds of his colleagues in the Senate would not know they were simulta-neously voting to approve the head of the reconnaissance office.

When asked about the reconnaissance off-ice, Herbert E. Hetu, chief spokesman for the CIA, said, We can't even discuss the name."

Officials said the reconnaissance office was established in 1961 to exploit the nation's early surveillance satellites. It took over a reconnaissance project run by the CIA, which had developed the U-2 spy plane.

Many intelligence officials consider the extreme secrecy an anachronism.

"Everyone knows we fly satellites to spy on the Soviets and to help verify arms limita-tion agreements," said one, "It no longer makes any sense to cloak the whole program in secrecy

The secrecy has been maintained for severreasons, other officials said. One concern was that government acknowledgement of the reconnaissance office's work might prompt the Soviet Union to break the unstated understanding between the two superpowers that each would tolerate the use of econnaissance satellites by the other to collect intelligence on more than arms limitation verification.

The Soviet Union could, for example, take steps to protect itself from reconnaissance by encoding more of its communications, or even by attacking U.S. satellites.

A second reason cited was the sensitive nature of the technology involved. "Once we start answering questions and opening doors," said one Defense Department offi-"where do we stop?"

A third reason, intelligence officials said, is fear that once the reconnaissance office is partly declassified, it will be subject to requests for information made under the Free dom of Information Act. Such requests, offi-cials said, might produce evidence of the off-ice's cost overruns and domestic surveillance.

U.S. Polls Show Sharp Rise in People Who List Themselves as Republicans

By Barry Sussman

Washington Post Service WASHINGTON - Public opinion experts are studying striking new findings that show sharp gains "There have been slight aberra-tions in the past," he said, but not like those being noticed now. In the Post-ABC poll, conducted on Feb. 19 and 20, 25 percent of those interviewed said that they in the number of Americans who consider themselves Republicans and decreases in the number who consider themselves Democrats.

gin over the Republicans as the party that people identify with. The new findings, while varying slightly from poll to poll, show that margin being cut in half. They also tend to show an increase in the proportion of Americans who consider themselves independents. According to the head of the "I couldn't believe the first read," Mr. Wirthlin said, noting that in polling during the 1980 presidential campaign and imme-diately after he had seen no shift in party affiliation. He said that his polls last year constantly showed the Democrats holding more than a 20-point margin over the Repub-licans nationwide.

'Realignment' Vote

Gallup Poll, Andrew Kohut, the views — a number large enough to shift being found is much sharper than those that generally occur when a new president takes office. At the Gallup Poll in Princeton, Without a start with conviction that the change had occurred. At the Gallup Poll in Princeton, Without a start with conviction that the change had occurred.

At the Gallup Poll in Princeton, Mr. Kohnt said that he noticed the change at the same time. He said that the Gallup organization conducts telephone polls each week with samples of about 500 people. The differences that Mr. Kohut has found are at least as striking as

Mr. Wirthlin's. At the time of the election, for example, Mr. Kobut said that his telephone polls showed the Demotelephone polls showed the Demo-crats with a 12-point edge, and in early December they held a 15-point edge over the Republicans in self-identified party affiliation. In his recent polls, that margin has varied from a low of two points to a high of six points, he said.

At the same time, however, Mr. Kohut noted a peculiar variatioo: While Gallup's telephone polls consistently have shown the Democrats losing support and the Re-publicans gaining, the firm's in-persoo interviews have not. "I don't know what to make of it," Mr. Kohut said. Ordinarily, be noted, telephone interviews result in a greater number of people labeling themselves as independents than do in-person interviews, but show no overall difference in the proportions considering them-selves Democrats or Republicans.

While some observers have said that the Reagan landslide and ma-jor Republican gams in the Senate marked 1980 as a "realignment" election, Mr. Wirthlin noted that he had not regarded it that way - until now. The Republican pollster said that his findings were based on three nationwide polls since Janu-ary totaling more than 6,000 intergration.

Alberta Begins to Trim Oil Production In Defiance of Trudeau's Energy Plans

By Andrew H. Malcolm New York Times Service

TORONTO - In the latest of a series of regional confrootations threatening Canadian unity, the province of Alberta began cutting back petroleum production Sunday. Following lack of progress io the bitter resource priciog dispute be-tween Canada's federal govern-ment and the province of Alberta. the province is reducing output by 100,000 barrels a day, the first of three cuts that are to total 280,000 barrels daily by Sept. 1. California Astronomers Report Remotest Galaxies Yet Observed

United Press Interno BERKELEY, Calif. - Astronomers at the University of California report the discovery of at least three galaxies 10 billion light years from Earth - the farthest part of the universe vet seen.

The discovery, they said, supports the big-bang theory of how the universe began, which has been challenged by some scientists.

"Evidence from these farthest galaxies," a university spokesman said. "strongly supports a theory suggesting that a primordial ex-plosion or 'big bang' occurred about 18 billion years ago and was followed by the formation of stars and galaxies from the expandiog gases within about 2 billion years."

A report on the discovery of a buge galaxy 10 billion light years from Earth was published by Prof. Hyron Spinrad in the latest issue of the Astrophysical Journal. Since submitting that paper. the astronomer said Sunday, be and his associates have identified two more galaxies a similar distance from Earth.

In 1975, Prof. Spinrad reported the discovery of a galaxy g billioo light years away.

Prof. Spinrad said it appeared that "the most distant galaxies are much larger than our Milky Way galaxy." He said it would "require a thousand billion stars like our sun" to equal their light.

The discovery of the distant galaxies was made at the universi-ty's Lick Observatory. The light observed and measured by the scientists has been traveling through space at 5.88 trillion miles per year for about 10 billion years.

If the universe is 1g billion years old, as many astronomers believe, the discovery means the researchers "are looking more than halfway back in time toward the moment many believe marks the beginning of the universe," the report said.

Andreas Papandreon, leader of the major opposition Socialist Par-ty, said the disclosures proved that the government has "surrendered Greece to the United States as its private property." He said that even worse was the fact that the government had lied to the public and Parliament by presenting them with agreements which hid the secret terms over the nuclear arms.

"There is no such precedent in the history of governments opera-ing within the framework of parti-amentary democracy," Mr. Papan-dreon said. "The least demanded today is the resignation of the en-

The government announcement said that Greece, in its current ne-gotiations over the U.S.-Greek defense and economic cooperation agreement, is insisting that the U.S. bases will be under Greek command and control, will only serve NATO objectives, and that there will be no secret texts attached to the final agreement. Earlier, Greek Defense Minister Evangelos Averoff also avoided referring to the alleged nuclear stockpiles, but said the press re-ports contained "strange allega-tions against Greek and American officials, and both known facts and unknown inaccuracies." He said the articles were "question-able" and harmed the interests of both the Western alliance and U.S.-Greek relations."

The reports had suggested that similar secret terms may well have been signed between the U.S. and other allied countries. The U.S. Embassy in Athens declined to comment on the disclosure that Hawthome Mills, the head of the embassy's negotiating team over the issue, had signed the secret protocols with the Greeks in week on charges of murdering a July, 1977 farmer and a married couple while

PEKING - Irrational great leaps forward in economic development should become relics of the past as China strives "to disenmalady of trying to get quick re-sults," Peking's chief economic planner said in a major policy

Vice Premier Yao Yilin told the Standing Committee of the Na-tional People's Congress that slow and practical economic results are now the aim of the Peking leader-ship, and he stressed that stringent cutbacks in government spending combined with a carefully moni-tored supply-and-demand system based on market forces would pre-เริ่ง covery rates. The vice premier said that state budget cutbacks for 1981 required a temporary retrogression in some programs that was necessary to put China's economy on a firm looting for slow but steady economic growth.

He stressed that because of inentives to peasant farmers, including price rises for government-purchased grain and other pro-duce, "the social order in China's vast countryside is stable and the peasants feel secure and happy." El Salvador and the Allies

Having chosen to make support on El Salvador the first big test of its capacity to mohilize non-Communist allies and friends, the Reagan administration must ask itself why it is getting such a dusty and disappointing response. Most of the countries solicited for support are ready enough to grant the president's point that foreign Communists have had a large hand in arming the El Salvador guerrillas. But he asks for more: He asks in effect that the various allies and friends license the United States to do what it feels is necessary militarily to put down the guerrillas. This the others are unprepared to do.

Behind their reluctance lies, first, a difference of analysis. Where the administration says the main danger to the junta comes from the left, most European and Latin countries feel more plausibly that at this point the guerrillas are heing beld and that the main danger to the junta comes from its own right wing and from its outriders. A single-minded focus on the guerrillas, therefore, may simply have the effect of finishing off the civilian reformist component of the junta.

The second source of reluctance arises from the administration's very intensity. It is acting as though the fate of El Salvador is of glohal importance. In truth, this is the feeling the administration means to project. It is aiming for a display of boldness and resolution that will shock Communist countries and others into understanding that the United States is rough. tough and ready to do hattle.

But the allies, whose security depends in large measure on the United States, want to see not only firmness hut a sense of halance. They want to see a matching sensitivity to the political equation. None of them lacks a certain vexing propensity to hang hack from even the most reasonable U.S. step in whose benefits they stand to share. But the Reagan policy, taking a good point and carrying it to excess, gives them an easy out.

Though the Reagan administration's first hig diplomatic campaign is dragging, it is not beyond revival. The administration will certainly want to keep on insuring that the guerrillas are not resupplied, first of all hy using the diplomatic means that it is employing with apparent success now. This should give it a full measure of international impact.

At the same time, the civilian president of El Salvador. Jose Napoleon Duarte, must be bolstered in his last-chance effort to strengthen hoth his authority and his popular support. In words anyway, Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. has shown he understands what must he done. This offers the hest hope of generating the international respect that has eluded the administration so far.

THE WASHINGTON POST.

Polish Spring in April?

Poland's capitalist creditors, including the United States, have just spent three days in Paris pondering how to save Socialism in Poland. It is a task at once ideologically confounding and politically essential. The alternative to providing relief, the creditors correctly figure, is to see the Polish economy drag down the Polish workers movement. For the creditors, there is also the matter of getting hack their money, some $25 billion. and sparing the world financial system the shock of a Polish default.

Poland's problem is specific: Since its debt is not only big but short-term, it must borrow more than $10 billion this year (and a similar amount next year) to finance debt service. The official creditors' problem is more diffuse: They must determine how important Poland is in their overall financial as well as geopolitical scheme of things, and what particular measures would best serve their interests. To do all this was, it seems, too much for Paris. The creditors merely agreed on cer-tain sbon-term aid and said they'd meet again in April.

That's fine. It is, after all. Poland's debt. which is to say that the Poles must make it possible - not easy, but possible - for their creditors to work with them. The Poles bave a long way to go. The new premier, Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, in a striking act of political levitation. has gotten the people to agree to forgo strikes for 90 days.

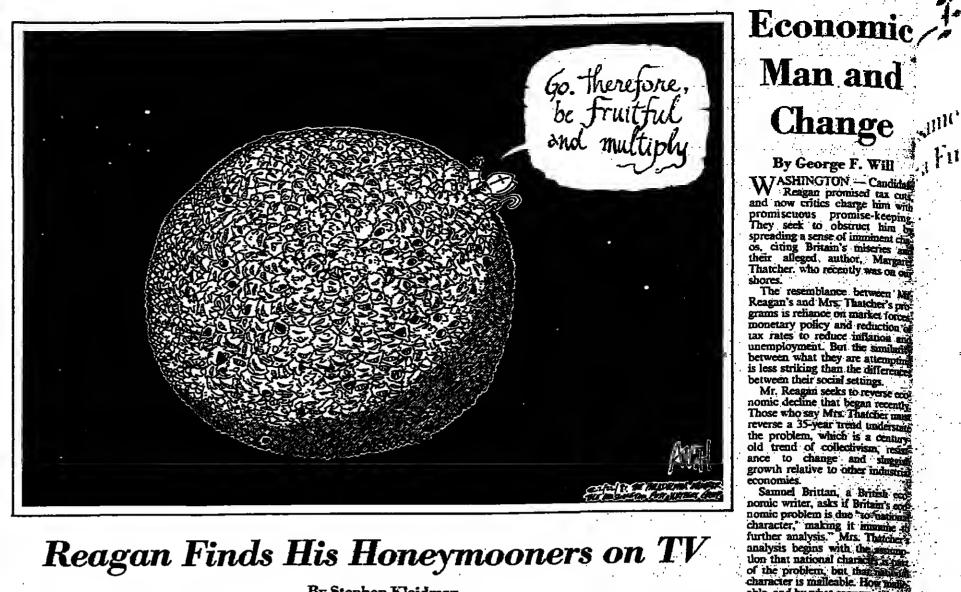

That would take Poland through the Communist Party congress scheduled for April. There the gut question must be tackled: whether Poland will embrace the deep painful reforms --- decentralization, in-centives, market tests --- that alone might revive the economy, provide the only economic foundation on which Solidarity can be sustained and, in the process, restore Poland's credit worthiness.

Poland's economic problems are manageable and potentially soluble with reforms, a new Heritage Foundation study suggests. That is, if the Kremlin lets the Poles try. If the reformers can make the difficult political breakthrough they need at the party congress, the situation facing the West will be transformed.

A hreakthrough would signal party acceptance. and presumably Soviet acceptance, that Solidarity is here to stay. It would indicate party and Solidarity agreement on the basic deal that remains to be made between them: a fair measure of internal liberty and dignity in return for hard work and delayed economic rewards. It would enable the West to consider serious debt relief.

Relief without reform is throwing good money after bad, doing Moscow more of a favor than Warsaw. But with reform, relief becomes feasible. With relief, reform becomes feasible. It's up to the Poles.

WASHINGTON — With an insistence bordering on obsession. Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. has focused his weeks in office on the Communist menace in El Salvador. One would think that El Salvador presented the gravest current threat to U.S. security, that Communists were the main reason for misery there and that U.S. arms were a likely cure. But those propositions are all false. El Salvador is a tiny country distinguished by a particularly brutal history of economic repression. An oligarchy has owned the land for a century and used the armed forces to keep the peasants in subjecnon. What is going on now is the result of that sys-tem and the inevitable desire to change it.

In October, 1979, a mixed civilian-military junta began reforms. But rightist military elements gradually reasserted their influence, and there were growing numbers of political murders. Most of the civilian politicians went into opposition. Last year the six leading opposition ligures were murdered. as was a principal Catholic critic of the regime, Archbishop Oscar Arnulfo Romero. Those are the circumstances - undisputed among U.S. analysts -- that gave rise to the guerrilla move-ment in El Salvador. Politicians of the democratic left and the Christian Democranic center are in the movement along with Marxists. It is not an external Communist intervention. And the guernilias do not do most of the killing.

Immigration: The Missing Nail

Who should decide which foreigners are allowed into the United States, the foreigners or the United States? In a responsible society. the question would answer itself. But that's not the way things now work in the United States.

We are a rich and generous country given to hragging about our immigrant origins. When there is obvious need, we live up to the romanuc images of Miss Liberty and the Golden Door, taking in waves of freedom fighters or boat people. But romance notwithstanding, there is no longer any such thing as unlimited immigration. A million people are waiting in line to enter the United States legally; millions more are eager to jump the line; and the nation must choose which to let through the door.

The United States now purports to choose, to make its own rational immigration policy. But, in great part the policy is made by hundreds of thousands of individual foreigners who slip into the country illegally. In the process, America loses.

Undocumented farm workers from Mexico. for instance, may he brave and industrious. But each takes a place that, if society were choosing fairly, might be assigned instead to a refugee from Somalia, a sister from Korea or a more deserving Mexican applicant. The country is not now making the choice. The more the system spins out of control, the more Americans lose patience with government — and perhaps with any immigration at all.

How should the country regain control of its own immigration choices? A blue-ribbon commission, led hy the Rev. Theodore Heshurgh of Notre Dame, has just provided a careful and reasonable way. Wars are lost for lack of a horsesboe nail; as the commission sbows, creating a rational immigration policy turns on a nail called worker identification. That is:

If the United States wants to decide bow much immigration to permit, it must do a far better job of controlling illegal immigrants.

If the United States wants to control illegal immigrants hetter, it needs a far better enforcement system than the starved Immigration Service's, and without requiring the Reagan hudget-cutters to find much new money.

If the United States wants effective but economical enforcement, the surest way is through employers, who now are legally free to hire illegal aliens and in any case have no good way to check an employee's status.

If the United States wants to make an enforcement system effective by making employers culpahle, employers must have a reliable way to screen out illegal aliens, without discriminating against legal residents who look or sound foreign.

The Hesburgh Commission could not agree on exactly how to do this. Some members would have workers show forge-resistant Social Security cards. But that conjures up police-state images to others. They would insutute an automated call-in system, like that used with credit cards.

Still, whatever the differences over method, almost the entire commission strongly agreed on the need for some secure identification system. One way or another, it's the nail without which the country will keep losing the illegal immigration war.

NEW YORK - An editorial in the Herald reads: "The reasons advanced by the president for the construction of a high-level multiple lock canal across the isthmus of Panama are neither convincing nor reassuring. They appear to be political concessions to a popular impatience with the delays in the digging of a sea-level waterway and to an apprehension that the cost of the permanent over the temporary way may have a bad effect on the country. Mr. Roosevelt's main argument rests on the assumed relative efficiencies of the Sault Ste. Marie lock canal and of the straightaway canal at Suez. The comparison is defective when compared with the conditions to be faced in Panama.

In an upcoming issue of Public Opinion magazine, which is pub-lished hy the conservative American Enterprise Institute, new UN representative Jeanne J. Kirkpatrick describes what Mr. Reagan is doing. She says: "This administration is committed to a reaffirmation of the American tradition and the American idea.

"I've been thinking abont De Gaulle lately. De Gaulle talked continuously about his conception of a certain idea of France.

"We are principally involved with a certain idea of America. And that idea affirms our identity as revealed in our traditions and history. The essential elements of that identity involve a commitment to the individual as a free agent, as the creative principle in society.

"De Ganile used to say, 'France is not France when she is not great.' Well, America is not America when we are not successful. I don't mean success in any crass or readily calculable sense, but rather success and confidence about our fundamental purposes.

Legitimate Aspirations

"I have been thinking a great deal about the legitimate aspira-tions of the American people these days. At the United Nations a great deal is said about the legitimate aspirations of other people. One of the things this administra-tion will do is affirm our legitimate aspirations."

President Reagan is telling Americans that they will be suc-cessful and that their aspirations are legitimate. And he is getting his message across because he believes it, because the people want to believe it and because he knows

'Chief Killer'

"The chief killer of Salvadorans is the government security forces." Robert E. White, the former U.S. ambassador, said that in congressional testimony, and here again U.S. experts generally agree. Last year the government forces killed at least 6.000 people, a large proportion of them innocent civilians.

A grucsome example of the slaughter was described in The Sunday Times of London on Feb. 22; a massacre of nearly 300 peasant refugees last May 14 in a primitive settlement near the Honduran border. Soldiers shot women and slashed children with machetes. The story was told hy a U.S. Capuchin priest, the Rev. Earl Gallagher.

pnest, the Kev. can Ganagner. Mr. Haig's solution for all this is to demand that Cuba and Nicaragua stop sending weapons to the guerrillas, and to help El Salvador's forces with U.S. weapons and advisers — just training officers, be says. Mr. Haig has decided, as Sen. Charles H. Percy approvingly put it, that El Salvador "is the place to draw the line."

What Mr. Haig and the Reagan administration ob-viously want is a victory over "Communism." It is hard to advance the security of the West in places that really matter, such as the Gulf region. So El Salvador is it.

> ans are not party to any foreign ideology. Your reporter, for some unknown reason, completely ig-nores the existence and activities of the "Justice Commandos of the Armenian Genocide," a purely Armenian nationalistic group without any foreign connections. According to Western press reports, this group has committed the ma-jority of anti-Turkish acts during the past five years, the latest of which was the assassination of the Turkish Consul-General in Austra-Geneva.

Mr. White told Congress, to "assassinate and kill in a totally uncontrolled way. Do you want to associate yourself with this kind of killing?"

The policy is also likely to offend our allies. West Germany last week broke with the U.S. line by endorsing efforts at political mediation between the El Salvador government and the opposition. The French foreign minister, Jean Francois-Poncet, visiting Washington, combined a condemnation of Cuban arms shipments with the comment that the problem would not be solved by "purely military means," adding, "I think everyone recognizes that reforms have to be introduced.'

Worse yet is the effect on relations with Mexico. A sensible policy would have encouraged Mexico to as-sume a regional responsibility on El Salvador. What has been done left President Jose Lopez Portillo no political choice but to criticize. "We are sure," he said. "that a military solution is not viable and that only a political solution will restore peace to the re-SIOIL.

There is a particular irony in the Haig policy. Reagan ideologues such as Jeane J. Kirkpatrick criticize past U.S. efforts to reform other governments; we are not wise enough to do that, they argue. But it is just as much U.S. intervention to say that the status quo is best for another country and must be maintained, however bloody the cost to that country. Moreover, rightist Salvadoran exiles in Miami are supporting the death squads; what is the United States doing about that intervention?

A Reagan administration spokesman said the other day that the opposition in El Salvador should have used political means rather than resorting to violence. That is the advice to people whose leaders were murdered. It is right to try to stop the violence, but the way to do that is not to give unlimited sup-port to those who are doing most of the killing. ©1981, The New York Times.

When shall we be delivered from, the conservatives' pretense that they, unlike liberals, do not believe in using government to promote their values through social change? If that were true, there would be no point in electing conservatives.

Tax-Free Saudi Prosperity Mixes Welfare With Wealth

By Steven Rattner New York Times Service

RIYADH — Sandi Arabia's economy is a hybrid — a variety of social welfare pro-grams grafted onto a system dominated by free enterprise. Government policy, which also includes severe economic discrimination against foreigners, leaves some Saudis fabulously wealthy, others moderately well-to-do, and unskilled guest workers almost universally poor.

In the sandy outskirts of this capital city, for example, high-walled compounds con-taining luxurious, often marble-clad villas, have sprung up. Downtown, Saudi families remain crammed into 20-year-old apart-ments above shops. Tents and sheds dot the city's vast undeveloped blocks.

Saudi officials say that their goal is to provide equality of opportunity, not equali-ty of income or wealth.

"When yon're dealing with industry, you don't have a humanitarian aspect, you have to see the merits," said Fouad al-Farsi, deputy minister of industry. "Since everybody qualifies, this is an objective policy."

One reason for the disparities in wealth is the lack of a tax system. In Saudi Arabia, there is no property tax to prevent the accu-mulation of vast estates, and oo income tax to slice sections off enormous incomes.

'It is God who blesses people with luck, brains or opportunity --- or it is He who blinds them to it.'

At least in part, the Saudi view of the economy stems from the kingdom's strong religious ties. "It is God who blesses people with luck, brains or opportunity, or it is He who blinds them to it," said Abdullah Alire-za, deputy foreign minister for economic affairs.

For less talented Saudis, the government pours tens of billions of riyals (3.34 riyals equals $1) into subsidy programs so that the cost of basics will be brought to a level every Saudi can afford. A pound of sugar in a supermarket costs only 40 cents, but a bottle of unsubsidized Perrier water can run to several dollars. Electric power is one-20th the cost in the United States.

Both Saudi and Western officials here ar-Both Saudi and western ornicals net a-gue that the plethora of government pro-grams and the overall national prosperity have prevented the hardship conditions that produced revolution in countries like Iran.

"Life is much better in Sandi Arabia than it was 10 years ago," a Western diplomat said. "People are grateful to the govern-ment, and there aren't at present signs of dangerous dissatisfaction."

Some of these benefits, such as food and telephone subsidies, also aid foreigners. Other benefits offered to Saudis, such as an apartment in the modern 20-story towers on the outskirts of Jidda and other cities, or a job in a government agency, are completely denied to non-Saudis.

Foreigners have also been excluded from the principal avenue by which individual Saudis have acquired wealth - ownership of real estate. A Saudi can petition the government for land and, in most cases, eventually be given without payment a plot worth hundreds of thousands of dollars. Foreign-ers are not permitted to own real estate. Uotil recently, real estate prices throughout the kingdom were increasing at a tortid pace, providing instant windfalls for thou-sands of speculating Saudis. One Saudi, who pours coffee for the interior minister, lives in a $500,000 house here thanks to real es-tate profile. A subject that Satis Satistic tate profits. Another, Abdul Sahin Saftah, a 32-year-old middle-level government official who studied at Oklahoma State University, said, "It happens like a dream. One moment you're rich."

To build, the Saudi Real Estate Develop-ment Fund will lend up to $100,000 for 25 years without interest with a 25-percent dis-count for early payment. Newly married Saudis receive a $5,000 government dowry.

Free, unlimited education, including generous living allowances, is available to Saudis; 21,000 are studying abroad, mostly at government expense.

A Saudi with an industrial project can apply for an interest-free loan to the develop-ment fund, which has lent more than 500 firms an average of $4 million. For enter-(Continued on Page 9, Col. 1)

Debt-Laden Brazil Off to Quick Start on Borrowings

PARIS - Brazil, the most heavily endebted developing country, is wasting no time in arranging the credits it will need to get through this year.

A year ago, Brazil got off to a very slow start, borrowing a mere $290 million in the first three months of the year, a third of the year-carlier's volume and a bare one-twentieth of what it ultimately took from the Euromarket for all of 1980.

Interior Decorators

Fewer than 5 percent of today's pur-chasers of old boods are speculators who hope the bonds will be redeemed, Mr. Hug-gins said. Speculators go after those bonds whose value as collectibles is less than the face value; there are some of these in the Stanley Gibbons sale. True scripophilists are concerned instead with a certificate's historical significance, as shown mainly in its autographs, together with its age or rarity.

A surprising number are bought by interior decorators who frame and hang them like Japanese prints. Banks and brokerage firms prize them as financial art, so conditioo becomes an important price determinant.

An 1898 Chinese bond bears a pre-sale estimate of $25,000, although Mr. Herzog thinks it will go for much less. The value of a 1912 bearer bond with the coat of arms of 1979, before auction fever struck, is worth, $1,800 to $2,000 today.

New York Yankees

Other highlights of the Stanley Gibbons sale of 350 lots include an 1866 American Express $500 share handsigned by Henry Wells and William George Fargo, estimated at $480, and a 1795 certificate for 25 shares in the North American Land Co., signed by Robert Morris, a signatory of the Declaration of Independence, and James Marshall, brother of the first chief justice of the United States, at $420.

At the Smythe sale, to be held March 26, the lot with the highest reserve of $7,500 is a series of New York Yankees corporate documents dating from 1912 to 1960. The estimate for a Chinese bond signed by un-derwriter J.P. Morgan is $2,500 to $3,000. Other certificates up for anction bear the sig-natures of P.T. Barnum, the circus magnate, and financiers John Jacob Astor, Jay Goold and E.H. Harriman.

The next areas where the biggest apprecia-tion can be expected, in Mr. Herzog's opin-ion, are 18th-century and early 19th-century U.S., Latin American and African securities.

Secretary of the Treasury Donald T. Regan has contended that most of the tax cuts to individuals will be saved, but the "permanent income" thesis of Prof. Milton Friedman implies that most of the tax cuts will be used for consumption, like any other income. Prof. Friedman won the Nobel Memorial Prize in Economie Science in 1976 for his work on the economics of consumption and saving. His mathematical analysis led to the conclusion that the total amount of money spent on consumption is, on the average, a con-stant fraction of the consumer's permanent income. Yugoslav officials say it is too among Tito's successors but note soon for reforms to affect infla-tion, and they predict the rate will drop by half this year. However, economy. that was the same prediction they made for 1980, but the inflation rate increased by almost half instead

Among the economic reforms was a 30 percent devaluation of the dinar, the lifting of price con-trols from almost a third of all consumer goods and a tight clamp down on imports.

in some areas there was a more than 50 percent increase in prices for electricity, postage and many commodities. The price of gaso-line, which is now the equivalent of $3.55 a gallon, has increased by about 65 percent over the last 18 months

The result of the reforms has been a shortage of coffee, butter and some consumer durable goods and a sharp drop in average per-sonal income — to the equivalent of $3,000 a year, the third highest in Eastern Europe behind East Germany and Czechoslovakia.

"Those measures should put to an oations.

A party faction supporting de-centralization now has the upper hand, some observers believe, but its fate clearly depends oo reducing the inflation rate and its ability that we could not act together without Marshal Tito," says Jovan

Velijkovic, a high-level planning official

The debate points out what a be a main characteristic of p Tito Yugoslavia — an increa willingness to publicly disc more of the country's policy pr "Some of our economie difficuities stem from the fact that we do not have a sufficiently strong cen-tral government," says Mitja Ribi-Rotating Leadership cic, a hard-line party leader. When Tito died last May he

But Andrej Marinc, another top party official, argues for just the opposite, a "more realistic" ap-proach to the economy with "greater autocomy" for business replaced by a complicated ni member presidency whose rep sentatives must rotate their j each year. Tito's job as Comr nist Party leader was taken over a 23-member leadership cour enterprises and "respect for mar-ket laws." that also rotates its officials.

Both groups are balanced in Yugoslavia's economy already is far more decentralized than the effort to represent Yugoslavi various republics and nationalic economies of other Communist -led and prevent any one area, group person from dominating the o nations in Europe. signs and stationery. For instance, 500 offices of the Transamerica Financial subsidiary required new signs. The colors for all subsidiaries have been standardized to red, blue and beige.

The conglomerate hopes to reap considerable recognitico from the renaming of Interway to Transam-erica Interway. All new Interway cootainers are being painted with the revised name, and old ones are repainted when hauled in for repair. About half the containers have been modified; in a few years the entire fleet is to bear the new name.

Besides trumpeting its name, Transamerica is lookevelopment in industries ing for ways to spend a large accumulation of cash in by the government, such the next five years. "We've been shown a number of cable companies and come to what should be a proper price for us to pay, or to even stretch to pay," Mr. Herringer said, "and someone else comes along and pays 75-percent more." United Artists has been one of Transamerica's more troublesome wards. Rumors abounded last year that the corporate parent had pot it on the block. "All a bunch of baloncy," Mr. Harvey said. Yet many Wall Street observers think the film company ought to be unloaded.

has lured away much of United Artists' top tale

The lastest defectioo of note was Woody Allen. Mr. Harvey plays down these developments. He even sanguine about the prospects for "Heaver Gate" when it re-emerges as a two-hour film in Apr The $36-million Western was yanked from theaters November after receiving caustic reviews. Transamerica believes it would make sense to o plore buying a botel chain, which would fit in w Budget and Transamerica Airlines. The question what is the long-term trend for the travel industry says Mr. Herringer. "The big unknown is communications. What is the electronic communications in dustry going to do to the travel business?"

In the Wrong Businesses'

Executives from Budget and Transamerica Airlin may have furnished a glimpse of what that impa will be. They confer every quarter for planning pu poses at the airline's headquarters in Oakland, Calif or at Budget offices in Chicago. But for the late meeting they opted for a teleconference via phor lines — and they loved it.

Transamerica comes in for criticism, "What you" got is a lot of nicely run sobsidiaries, but if you' going to be in the wrong businesses for 1981, they' in it," said Joseph Dowling, an analyst at Drex Burnham Lambert.

"This is a company that has really been hit by th interest-rate problem, and I think they've done we not to be burt further. They are a financial service company that is probably more exposed than any other financial services company. There's almost oo m until th Last year Transamerica reported a mild increase in carnings to $245 million from $240.2 million. Reveoues grew to $4.4 billion from $4 billion. United Artists declined, largely due to a write-off of "Heaven's Gate" costs. Interway suffered heavily from the re-cession, although it is viewed as a promising growth area. For 1981, analysts anticipate fairly flat results again for Transamerica. Mr. Harvey forecasts a moderate carnings gain. Long-term prospects, however, appear quite ad-vantageous. Transamerica thinks general populatioo trends favor service companies. In the 1980s, it points out, the generation of the postwar baby boom will be aged 25 to 40, an age bracket of big earning and big spending. Also, people are living longer and retiring cartier, and this increases the market for entertainment and financial services. As for the leadership changes at Transamerica, Mr. Beckett seems bappy. "I've felt very strongly for many years that 20 years in the saddle is long enough for anyone, and maybe 100 long," he said. "The new broom sweeps clean." He expects to spend less time in the office, and to "write music, paint a little, play tennis and spend more time with my wife." Not everyone is convinced that Mr. Beckett will be able to become an interested observer who leaves Mr. Harvey alone. "That's not the way Jack is," says Mr. Dowling of Dretel Burnham. "He's an activist. He built this company from scratch. It's like a mother-inlaw: You may have married my son, but I don't like the way you treated him.' It's like other top management changes. You get the title now and three years later you get the job."

n Picks GSA Chief Vew York Times Service IINGTON - President has selected Gerald P. 50, a politically active businessman from Man-N.H., to head the General Administration, the White rid Saturday.

Mr. Harvey professes to be firm about keeping it. In December he reshuffled the management, moving Andy Albeck, the president and chief executive, to chairman and chief executive, and naming Norman Auerbach as president and chief operating officer. Mr. Auerbach assumed Mr. Albeck's post after the latter's resignation two weeks ago. Other executive shuffling has transpired, and more is rumored to be in the works. Mr. Harvey has also insisted on tighter control of film costs.

Recent troubles at United Artists date from January, 1978, when the five principal officers stomped out in anger with Transamerica management. They founded a new company called Orion Pictures, which will be tied to the export credits. The export credits are in fact very The export creatis are in fact very huganive, for a variety of technical reasons, for any bank (domestic or foreign) doing business in France. Overall, for each $1 of export cred-it banks take ($583 million in all), they will be required to supply $1.32 of financial credit.

This procedure also means, of course, that Brazil cannot make use of the financial credits without occeded business.

The credit to Petrobras totals $500 million to finance the purchase of two offshore platforms, accompanying equipment and services. The $100-million syndicated loan is only the first stage of the financial operation and will be followed by others. The metro project totals $200 million, of which only $80 million is in subsidized export credits. The railroad loan will total $300 million, but it is not clear yet how much of this will be financial credit Still to be determined is what margin over Libor Brazil will pay on these financial credits. The current market rate is 2% points over Libor, but Brazil is arguing for finer terms. Details on the Petrobras credit should become known

France itself is also currently in the market with Electricite de France looking for $600 million. This 10-year bullet loan can be increased to $1 billion if the response warrants it. EDF is offering to pay a balf-point over Libor for the first three years and % point over Libor for the final seven

erous considering that terms on re-cent French deals have started at a skimpy '4 point over Libor. EDF itself last year raised $500 million at a split 0.35-0.45 point over Libor giving an average margin of 0.4 point over Libor. Appearances aside, the terms oo the EDF loan represent a new low borrowing cost for France. EDF is point over Libor. not expected to draw on this loan during the first three years, which explains the cosmetically generous half-point margin. During that pe-riod, all the lending banks will carn is a standard '/ percent commitment fee on the undrawn amoimt

By contrast, EDF is likely to have to draw on this loan in later years, when the margin will be % point. If it does, it will be the first

French borrower to pay so little for so much money for so many years. The closest was a split 4-%-point margin for five years for a much smaller $75-million loan. The agony of the Italian earthquake loan is expected to end this week, when a final decision is expected on the shape. Under no conditions is Italy willing to increase the Libor margin which is in tine with what Spain, Sweden, Belgium and other European borrowers have or are paying. This leaves the option to increase the portion tied to the prime rate of U.S. banks, but there is no way that enough U.S. banks can be found to cover $2 billion. The final and most likely result is that the size of the loan will be halved by dropping the $1 billion that was to have been a stand-by loan. Greece will begin sounding the market this week on terms for a $400 million borrrowing. The Na-tional Bank will be seeking a 10-1. Quai du Mont-Blanc 1211 Geneva 1. Sufizer 1211 Geneva I, Switzerland Tel. 310251 · Telex 28305 year loan and, like its other European neighbors, a margin starting at % point over Libor. Also awaited are the terms on the $1-billion jumbo for Mexico's Banobras. This is expected to be a six-year operation patterned on the recent deal for Pemex, which was broken into three 18-month seg-ments each carrying a margin of ¹⁴

Mexico's state-owned fertilizer company, Fertimex, is in the market for $100 million offering to pay ½ point over Libor or ½ point over the prime rate for eight years. The margin can be incre by 14-to-' 14 point if banks absorb from 2/3-to-all of the 15 percent Mexican withholding tax.

Two U.S. companies are seeking short-term financing. Philadelphia Electric is borrowing $100 million for two years at a half-point over Libor and Pacific Power & Light is in the market for $100 million for two years, offering % point over Libor for the first year a half-point over thereafter.

A report in this space last week that the Argentine central bank was about to approach the market were incorrect, Argentine officials reported.

BR4IN By Robin Cook. Putnam. 283 pp. S11.95. AN ISLAND CALLED MOREAU By Brian W. Aldiss. Simon & Schuster, 173 pp. $10,95. Reviewed by Christopher Lehmann-Haupt

WHAT'S going on here? In the opening scene of "Brain," a college student named Katherine Collins shows up at the GYN clinic of New York City's Hob-son University Medical Center to get a copy of her medical records. She's been having dizzy spells, seizures and atypical Pap smears, and she wants to see her gynecologist at home in Wes-too. Mass. But for some reason the people at the clinic don't want to give Katherine her records. In fact when she presses them they take her into a small room and give her an injection that knocks her out. Then she disappears. What's going on here? A few days later, Lisa Marino is wheeled into an operating room for a craniotomy under a local anesthetic. She's been having dizzy spells, seizures and atypical Pap smears. During the operation she dies when a major artery in her brain gives way. Later, when her corpse is retrieved from the morgue for a surreptitious CAT-scan, it's found that her brain is missing. What the devil is going on here? Meanwhile, Dr. Martin Philips, assistant chief of neuroradiology has just received the program he has helped design for a computer that reads and analyzes skull X-rays. The first X-ray he feeds the computer prompts it to comment on peculiar white specks he would never have noticed with his naked eye. The X-ray is of the skull of Lisa Marino, the young woman who died in surgery. A few days later, the computer discovers another skull X-ray with the same white specks. It belongs to Katherine Col-

What's going on here? What's going on here is the very cleverly plotted new medical thriller by Robin Cook, the surgeon-novelist who wrote "Coma" and "Sphinx." In fact, so cleverly plotted is "Brain" that it forest the render to know even that it forces the reader to ignore such descriptive lines as this: "As she extended her arm to hang her coat, her breasts thrust against her blouse, and Philips appreciated the image as a connoisseur appreciated a work of art"; and such dialogue as this: "I think you've changed since your di-vorce." "I believe you realize that the greater part of your satisfaction is going to come from your own in terpersonal relationships."

Unfortunately, toward the end, when Dr. Cook takes the action of his thriller outside of the hospital, he loses control of the story completely. On top of that, the solution to what's going on in "Brain" turns out to be a lesson on the threat of certain medical researchers with insufficient respect for humanity. And insult added to injury: We have to endure a postscript lecture arguing that the threat is real. Still, none of this is so bad that it wipes out the fun of the first twothirds of the story. Maybe the thing to do with "Brain" is to read the first 200. pages and then make up your own Secretly sponsored government as search gets another black eye in Bill W. Aldiss' "An Island Called Moreau." an update of H.G. Wells "The Island of Dr. Moreau" by the indefatigable English science-fiction writer whose nearly three dozen pr ous books include "Frankenstein La-bound," "The Hand-Reared Boy" and "A Rude Awakening."

"During the early months of war in During the early months of war in 1996." the space shuttle Leda crashes into the Partific Ocean, leaving U.S. Undersecretary of State Calvert Rob-erts adrift on a tiny rait. A week or so later, a half-dead Roberts is fished out later, a nau-near resources is tissed out of the drink by a semihuman beast named George. When Roberts reco-vers his strength, he discovers that the island is run by a grown-up "thali-domide kid" named Mortimer Datiwho stomps around in an ingenious prosthetic device that turns him into a giant robot. "Morty." as one of his assistants calls him at one point, is into genetic engineering, thus carrying on where Wells' Dr. Morean left off.

A lot is wrong with "An Island Called Moreau." Aldiss has trouble making his hero sound American even though in one of Motimer Dart's assistants he's created an entirely authentic-sounding Midwest erner named Jed Warren. The "thali-domide kid" and a sexy female assistant of his named Heather Landis can't seem to decide whether to kill or make friends with Cal Roberts. A couple of times, the story zigs when it ought to have zagged.

But the monsters that Mortimer Dart is breeding are terrific. There's a pleasant interlude that Roberts spends with a family of polymorphoss perverse seal people. And Aldiss does a convincing job creating his island with all its dangerous corners and mysterious inhabitants. In fact, he achieves the metaphor he tries for -an island of consciousness haunted by the surrounding "aqueons subcon-scious of the planet."

Australian Air Force Retrieving Travelers

Reuters SYDNEY - Australian Air Force planes began Sunday to ferry more than 7,000 travelers who have been stranded in Australia and New Zea land by a two-week Qantas Airings strike and an airport fabor disput in-Auckland, New Zealand,

The airlift was announced after a Cabinet meeting Saturday in Canberra. Three Australian Air Force places brought back the first group of travelers from an air base near Auchland. The New Zealand Air Force was expected to join in the operation, which is to take up to three days

Wrecking Ball Smashes Theater

Where It Used to Play in Peoria The Associated Press PEORIA, III. — It's curtains for the Palace Theater — the last of the city's great vaudeville houses and the place where the phrase "Will it play to Peoria?" was born.

Demolition began Friday on the ornate 60-year-old building to make room for a high-rise apartment building and hotel. Efforts hy preserva-tion groups failed to save the structure from the wrecking ball.

"It's really a remarkable thing, the likes of which we won't see in Peoria again." said Donald Luebbe, president of the Preservation Alli-ance, a group that fought the razing. "Peoria was one of the centers of the whole vaudeville industry in this couotry" in the first part of the 20th century, he said. "Will it play in Peoria' came out of that period because they tried out vaudeville in Peoria due to the local conservatism and middle-class values."

NEW YORK - People keep asking how baseball players, on a minimum salary of $32,500 and an average several times higher than that, can even consider going on strike. "You mean they want more?" the uninformed demand. Dick Wagner, president of the Cincin-nati Reds, says he cannot believe that high-salaried players would give up their income for any ex-tended period.

First, if the major league players go on strike it will not be for mon-cy. They are not asking for a penny, for a privilege, for a change in the rules. They are fighting only to preserve rights won painfully over the years.

Second, the fact that they are willing to strike, making the sacrif-ices a work stoppage would demand of them, is a measure of their sincerity, their firmness of purpose.

On Feb. 19, the 26 major league clubs announced that they were ac-tivating a plan whereby a team lostovating a plan whereby a team los-ing a "ranking" player to free agency would be compensated with a major league player from the team that signed the free agent. Meeting in Tampa last Wednes-day the amountum head of the day, the executive board of the players' union voted unanimously to go on strike May 29 if the compensation plan were not discarded or modified.

Playing by the Rules

Both of these actions complied with rules laid down last May. These rules provided that a strike on the issue could not start later than June 1. As a result, according to Marvin Miller, bead of the players' union, May 29 was chosen to allow as much time as possible for a settlement through negotiation. No dates for negotiation meetings have been set. "It's up to them to come for-ward," Ray Grebey, director of the owners' player-relations commit-tee, said Wednesday. "We have not opened the contract or called a strike."

"I'm not one to stand on proto-col," Miller said, "but the owners' people have told me they expected A turning point came in the sixth round when Johnson, who was leading four rounds to one, to be in Arizona while we were in slipped while barely being touched. owners took out a $10-million strike insurance policy with Lloyd's of London last October and because there had been no ehange in the owners' proposal in 14 months, the Players' Association would bring charges of refusal to negotiate before the National Labor Relations Board.

Several Reminders

Grebey said he had pleaded with Miller to put a proposal on the negotiation table and Miller had refused. Grebey was reminded that the newspapers had carried three or four proposals by the players. There've been many suggestions in conversation but no proposal." he said.

Grebey keeps saying that when the owners announced they were implementing their compensation plan they were merely exercising a right granted to them in the agreement of last May. Reminded that the players had reserved from the start the right to reject the plan, he brushed that off.

"Considering the background," he said, "the modifications in the old employer-employee relationship with the players getting free agency, the five-year repeater rights, salary arbitration, mini-mum salaries, pensions, I don't consider this a major issue." He did not explain why his em-ployers were willing to invite a strike over a minor issue. "How do you see it?" he asked.

"As the opening move in a cam-paign to pullify the free agent sys-

Grebey said that was prepos-terous. "We're not out to eliminate free agency," he said. "We're not trying to cut salaries. And we sure as hell are not trying to reduce the baseball free agent to the pro football level."

A Different Business

What possible claim, he was asked, did a former employer have over a former employee, a free agent who had discharged all his obligations to the first employer? How could the first employer demand compensation for a man he no longer owned?

"If a man leaves Westinghouse to go to General Electric," he said, "Westinghouse has oo claim on him. There's a big, open labor market and neither company is likely to suffer much because of the change. But one player can make the difference between a losing

With the acquisition of King-man, the Mets hope to get the power hitter they need to help them become contenders in the National League Eastern Division.

Kingman, who played for the Mets from 1975 through June, 1977, still holds the club's singleseason home run record (37, in 1976). He was seeking to renegoti-ate his contract with the Cubs, but Cubs' owner Bill Wrigley was not interested in discussing the matter with the 32-year-old outlielder, known for his lack of cooperation with press and management.

"I'm sick and tired of all our roblems with him," general man-ager Bob Kennedy said at the Cubs' spring training camp at Mesa, Ariz. "If he shows up, he shows up. If he doesn't, what can I do about it?"

Bean and Watson were tied after eight holes Friday, but Watson knocked his drive on the 467-yard ninth hole out of bounds and then put his approach shot over the green. He three-putted for a seven. Bean took a five-stroke lead with birdies on the 10th and 12th holes and ran together a string of

Spinnage of Spinach

By William Safire

NEW YORK - When my N brother in columny William F. Buckley took exception to a suggestion of mine that people in public life disclose their sources of acome, he concluded his excortation of my rodomoniade with a scrumptious: "I say it's spinach."

That gave me pause: Why "spinach"? For years the term for such rejection was "applesauce." or the thirly dis-1 guiseo euphe-mism "horse-feathers!"

Then, in The New York Times. a headline over Safire an architectural review by Ada

Louise Huxtable included the word again: "It's Stylish, But Is It Art - Or Spinach?" This was taken from Mrs. Hustable's criticism of fashion-following architecture.

Despite the return of Popeye the Sailor to the silver screen, the word "spinach" is becoming a prime derogation. Buckley's use probably came from the caption of a cartoon by Cari Rose of a modern mother saying to her sour-faced child. "It's broccoli, dear." to which the tot replies. "I say it's spinach, and I say the hell with m. The cartoonist credited E.B. White with the caption.

Before the leaves of the nation's spinach growers turn limp from the unexpected heat, let me report that etymology gives the vegetable a clean bill of health. The word that was originally the basis of the oresent vogue term is not "spinach" but "spinnage." The onginal phrase was "gammon and spinnage." which means "nousense, humbug." Enc Partridge cited a Charles Dickens use in 1850: "What a world of gammon and spinnage it is, though, ain't it?" The lexicographer speculated that "gammon" came from the deceit at gaming and listed the origin of soinnage" as obscure.

The counterreaction is upon us. For nearly two decades, ever since Merriam-Webster's Third International Dictionary refused to put a of "ain't." language lovers have been up in alarums

As a literate public became happily aroused, permissivism became a dirty word, "Anything goes" no ionger went.

Now the good-grammar set's honeynioon is over, in a counterattack, the linguistic permissivists have appeared with their no-standards standards flying. Two books lead the way:

In "American Tongue and Cheek: A Populist Guide to Our Language" (Pantheon), Jim Quinn. a poet and food columnist, embraces the kind of language that would have taken over if downreddenism had triumphed. "All language is poetry." he argues, and no rules should exist. "The slang of the poor, the new technical terms and jargon of the professionals. the cant of journalism, the simolistic language notions of pop gram-marians — all keep language from going stale."

The heavy araliery of the per-missivist counterattack is Dwight Bolinger, author of "Language: The Loaded Weapon" (Longman). The triggerman of this slim but explosive volume is described on the cover as "formerly professor of Romance languages and literatures at Harvard University, where he is now emerilus professor." (That seems to mean he teaches a course in emeritus.) "In language there are no li-censed practitioners," writes Bol-inger, "but the woods are full of midwives, herbalisis, colonic irrigationists, bonesetters and generalpurpose witch doctors, some abysmally ignorant, others with a rich call shamans.

Most of these language shamans from the Sanskrit word for ascetic), says Bolinger, "are as unin-formed about linguistic structure as their berbal counterparts are about anatomy and physiology."

There you have the opening sal-vo against us reactionaries of pop grammar - a poet and a professor, the first seeking a confronta-Uon and the second a synthesis. Read the Quinn and Bolinger books, both authors write well. We would do well to write the way they write - but oot to write the way they tell us it's all right to write

"I'm simply working my head off. I keep moving, moving, moving, two-thirds of the time on the road." That also helps to keep her mind off how lonely she is, almost 7.000 miles away from her husband, Koichiro Shimomura, a paper manufacturer, and from her parents, to whom she is close. "My hushand is oot a feminist; he doesn't care about women's status." she said. "He wants to make me hap-They wanted children badly, she said: they did not have them.

There was no confrontation between the Shimomuras when the two-year foreign assignment was offered. "He was a bit shocked; we discussed it, but he didn't complaio. He knew it was important for my career. It was tough for hum. We have known each other sloce high school and we are best friends."

Tough Questions

At the moment, Shimomura is doing the kind of important interviews that have made her famous in Japan. The subject is often economics hecause that is her field of expertise. She has talked with the beads of Pepsico, Pan American, the Bank of America and Motorola, among others, asking what she hopes are tough questions about how the U.S. economy can be revitalized.

Foreign correspondent Shimomura

The men at the top in U.S. hustness "are surrounded by yes-men," she has concluded. She majored in economics at Keio University in Tokyo and received a master's degree economics at New York University in 1964. Her first six months in the United States were a nightmare, she said, because of her faulty English. She would dream that English books were tumbing down on her, she said, and she invariable awoke with a scream. Finally, there was "a kind of melting." and the English came to her.

She thinks her drive comes from her mother, who became a doctor in the days when female physicians were rare in Jaoan.

Her mother was the film graduate of the Tokyo Women's Medical College, "My father, who's a business executive, wanted me to become a medical doctor, too, but I just wanted to write so much. At that time there was no opportunity - it was just like a dream.

Her break came at the 1964 Winter Oivmpics in Tokyo, where Asahi Shimhun hired her as an English interpreter. She interpreted for the newspaper's reporters and inter-

"We went first-class everywhere, I took Alverto Moravia, the Italian writer, on a trip. and also Edwin Reischauer, the American ambassador --- on it was wonderful."

Social Changes

In 1971. Asahi Shimbun felded "This Is Japan" and transferred Shimomura to The Weekly Asan. "We den't fire in Japan, once yoo've joined the corporation." she ex-plained. "I had to start writing in Japanese again, and it wasn't easy. But I worked up mednally form built there to short on to gradually from intic things to pieces on social changes among women, new ecocomic developments and labor relations. I was the first woman in that office. The editors didn't know what was going on." The male editors and readers liked her pieces on women least of all. "I wanted to show the enormous energy of women in Japan. Many were getting the same education as men, and found out that men weren't su-perior. After they got married they lost ev-crything. Men don't like that kind of story. They might think they were reading a radical publication. I had to write it a little bit funny, with an annused point of view, otherwise it would never be printed. And then a few feminists criticized me because they didn't like my compromises."

Although courteously treated by the men in her office, she said she felt "alone and isolated." Of Asahi's 3.000 reporters and editors, only seven at the Tokyo headquarters are women, with 20 more women in outlying bureaus. Once a year there is a "women's network" incheor at Asahi. The group's greatest achievement, she said, was obtaining equalization of men's and women's wages.

Soon after becoming a foreign correspondent last year. Shimonura went to Copen-hagen for the UN conference on women, then covered an OPEC conference in London. But above all she likes to do lengthy, one-person interviews.

Seven Books

Her written portraits - featured in some of her seven books - include profiles on Jean Mondale, Francoise Sagan, Princess Grace of Monaco. Lillian Carter, Kate Millett, Simone de Beauveir, Gloria Steinem and Oriana Failaci.

She finds Fallaci's interviewing manner ag-gressive and seaf-aggrandising. "Mine is the opposite," Shimomura said. "I listen. I am very low-key. I want to let people say what they believe in. I want them to trust me so they will open their hearts."

She does not believe she will ever become Westernized or Americanized, "My instincts and my ways of thinking are deeply Japanese, I want to keep it that way. It makes me a better journalist."

The engagement of Lady Diana Spencer to Prince Charles doubled the usual number of visitors Saturday to her father's home near Northampton. Reopening his resi-dence for the first time since the engagement was announced on Tuesday, Earl Spencer greeted the 80 visitors, who each paid £1 pound ($2.20) for a one-hour tour of the house and its art collection. To a group of sightseers who congratulated him on the engagement that will make him father-in-law of the heir to the throne, the earl said of his 19-year-old daughter: "She has had a hell of a six months. Now she knows what it is aff about. I have never seen her looking so lovely. She has really blossomed out."
